

Willie no come back again?

PHANTOM OF THE HAMPTON!

Eight stone sculptures have their manhood chopped off

By HILARY BROWN

A MYSTERY crackpot has been chopping off the willies of a city's Greek gods—and taking them home.

The attacker has left EIGHT stone statues—worth around £40,000 each—minus their manhood.

Now officials fear the 200 year-old treasures, copies from originals all over the world—may have been left worthless.

Students at Glasgow's School of Art, where the attacks have taken place, are furious—and determined to hunt down the attacker.

Entertainments officer Carol Fraser said: "Rumours are flying around about who is doing this."

"Some think it is some poor demented cleaning lady who snatches them on the sly and takes them home in her handbag."

"Or it could be a male member of staff with an inferiority complex—these statues were all big boys."

"Another theory is that it is a feminist on the loose."

But hunky male models, who have to stay covered up in class, are also under suspicion.

Protest

"It could be their way of protesting at not being allowed to show off," said Carol.

Now students have set up a 24 guard on the one statue whose Hampton Wick—that's Cockney rhyming slang for Willie—has been left untouched.

And the youngsters are searching the school—which houses art treasures worth more than £1 million—in case the missing parts have now been dumped.

"If we don't manage to find them the art department are all set to make new parts and stick them on," added Carol.

"We will have to try and find some volunteers to pose."

"But we'll be back a hoop if we get back the originals."

A police spokesman said last night: "We have not received an official complaint, but if we do we will look at it very closely."

DEAR EVERYONE,

Well the Sun has managed to do it again. Yesterday I received a phone call from some mumbling woman who asked bizarre questions about willies. After Olive picked me up off the floor as I am so unused to hearing the word "willie" mentioned in public, I stood for 10 minutes in a state of shock repeatedly saying "what?". It is amazing how some people can conjure up such delightful wee tales from such a naive wee country girl as myself. I DENY ALL - every quote was a fabrication of lies. My lawyers are getting in touch with the Scum.
